

SLAV MURDERS ANOTHER SLAV.

Tragedy Occurs at Dixie Coal Mines
Over a Board Bill and Jealousy of Man's Wife.

Five Bullets Fired in Drunken Melee and One Fatally Wounds Tulock, the Ball Entering the Body.

A small board bill caused a murder at Dixie coal mines two miles south of the city Saturday night. The victim is Alex Tulock and the murderer Frank Golick, both Slavs.

The parties to the tragedy and other Slavs had been drinking and they quarreled. The payment or rather non-payment of the board bill owed by Tulock to Golick, who keeps a boarding house, played the prominent part in the affair but it is stated that the murderer was prompted to the deed by jealousy of his wife. The bill was small, the murdered man having boarded there only since December. The shooting occurred about 11 o'clock at night. Golick fired five shots at his victim but only one took effect. The ball entered the body just below the right nipple. The other bullets narrowly escaped hitting other members of the party.

Immediately after the shooting Golick fled from his home and was last seen going toward the Weston road. He has not as yet been located and, of course, not arrested.

Dr. Kornman was summoned and gave the wounded man medical attention. He was removed to the Harrison County Hospital Sunday and died there at 6 o'clock Monday morning.

The remains were brought to the Clifford-Osborn Undertaking establishment, where Coroner W. F. Camp began an inquest Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The coroner's jury was composed of S. F. Reed, G. A. Waldo, W. C. Morrison, Samuel W. Gordon, David Bumgardner and W. S. Law.

Dr. Kornman testified that he was called to the mine at 1 o'clock Sunday morning. He found him shot and bleeding. He found the several Slavs in the shanty drunk and from what he could learn from them the trouble was over a board bill. Five shots were fired, according to their story, and the third took effect. The only word of English he spoke was "water" from the time of the shooting to his death at 6:20 Monday morning. He was conscious all the time. The intention in taking him to the hospital was to operate on him but his condition was too serious.

Joe Snider, a Slav, testified that he did not know the dead man's name. Had known him only three weeks. About 10:30 heard the people in a shanty yelling and he and his room mate got up and found women and men both fighting. Golick came in with a revolver. Tulock and he grappled and fell. The shooting then occurred while they were in that position, Golick being underneath and shooting upward at the man on top of him. Five shots were fired. They were all singing, drinking and dancing.

George Hondura said he knows the dead man. His name is Alex Tulock. Was asleep at the time. Heard the first shot. Saw three or four men on the ground. The boarding boss had the gun. Saw no one else with a gun and no one with a knife. Saw some of the shooting. They had whisky in the shanty.

Alex Fidak identified the dead man. He had known him all his life. Tulock was not trying to injure the boarding boss. He did not know what they were mad about.

George Rodori was in another room at that time and did not see the beginning. Heard the shooting. Did not see whether the boarding boss or his brother fired.

Joseph Beraki also identified the dead man. He was asleep but heard the first shot. Did not see the shooting. He was in bed drunk. When he heard the shot, he shut his door and slept until daylight.

The jury returned a verdict that he came to his death from a gun shot wound at the hands of Frank Golick.

Tulock has a wife and child in the old country.

FATALLY

Injured Was a Slavish Miner at Ocean Mine.

Died From His Injuries at Noon Monday.

Thomas Gara, a Slav, was fatally injured in the Ocean coal mine at 9 o'clock Sunday night by a heavy fall of slate. Dr. Hill, of Bridgeport, gave him medical attention but he died at 12:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. His body was considerably crushed and he received a wound on the head. He was a single man.

SORE FOOT

May Save Young Colored Lad From the Grand Jury.

Cleveland Parsons, colored, was arraigned before Squire Gordon upon a warrant sworn out by Dr. D. T. Birtwell, accusing him of theft of old coins and other trinkets valued at about $30. Parsons is only 15 years of age and has a crippled foot which needs medical attention. He got it mashed in the coal mine at Flemington two years ago and it has given him a great deal of trouble. Dr. Birtwell took him in hand and saved the member for him. He showed his appreciation by stealing the Doctor's property. Squire Gordon will make an effort to have him received at the Reform School at Pruntytown. If it had not been for his sore foot he would have been held for the grand jury.

Goes to Pruntytown

The West Virginia Reform School News contains the following article about a former Clarksburg young man who was until recently engaged in the grocery business on Main street:

"Among the new officers and teachers that have cast their lot with us, we see Mr. C. F. Copeman, of Kingwood, Preston county, W. Va. Mr. Copeman is a native of Preston county, educated in the free school and a graduate of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Mr. Copeman holds a first grade certificate in Preston county where he has taught several years before coming to us."

OVERCOAT

Causes Controversy Between Martin and Abbott.

An overcoat is in controversy between J. L. Martin, of this city, and Mr. Abbott, proprietor of the Blennerhassett hotel at Parkersburg. A few days ago Mr. Martin was a guest of the hotel and in leaving took the garment by mistake. Saturday the chief of police received a message from Mr. Abbott requesting him to get the overcoat and send it to him. Mr. Martin, however, refuses to return the overcoat until his own is sent to him. The chief has received word that an overcoat has been expressed to Mr. Martin.

DAMAGES

Will be Sued for by Several Salem Citizens

For Alleged Libel and Slander by the Salem Express.

Aggregate of Suit Will be $100,- 000—Referred to Them as Outlaw Gang.

Suit will in all probability be instituted against the Salem Express Publishing Company by a number of residents of Salem for defamation of character and slander. The suit will be one of magnitude as each of them will claim damages amounting to $10,000. Last week the town council of Salem met and granted two saloon licenses and then a number of men came here, for the purpose, it is asserted, to make application for license from the county court. The Express came out with an article naming the parties who had come for that purpose, namely George W. F. Randolph, William A. Carpenter, W. D. Montgomery, J. E. Sutton, Homer Williams, T. J. Hickman, Lloyd Duff, Theodore Dillger, L. A. Kennedy and A. Meek. The article was somewhat bitter and created much stir at Salem. The expression "outlaw gang" is used in the article and the gentlemen named consider the epithet applied to them. Several of the parties mentioned are in the city today consulting their attorneys, Davis & Davis, with damage suits already stated in view. So far they have been unable to ascertain who was the author of the article in question, but it appears that F. J. Ehret acknowledges that the article was handed in by him. He disclaims the authorship of it, however. Mr. Randolph claims that that paper promised to publish a certain article taken from the New York American but did so only in part, although they represented that they had done so.

Mr. Meek instituted his suit for $10,000 this afternoon. The others will follow suit.
